About Archer Well

Formed in 2011, Archer Well is the coming together of two well specialist companies, Seawell and Allis-Chalmers Energy, underpinned by experience and an outstanding record for safety and efficiency, Archer drilling teams secure the production on more than 35 platforms and operate over 70 mobile land rigs in the Americas and the North Sea. Our comprehensive drilling and work over services include platform drilling, land drilling, directional drilling, modular rigs, fluids, drill bits, engineering and equipment rentals, as well as a select range of well delivery support services and products.

Once each well is delivered, Archer Well service specialists leverage experience and the right tools to improve well integrity and performance, extending the productive life of these vital assets. Our well services capabilities include well intervention using wireline, tractors and coiled tubing, production monitoring, well imaging and integrity management tools, and other services aimed at improving well performance and extending well life.

Archer is publicly traded on the Oslo Stock Exchange under the ticker ARCHER. Our main operations currently take place in the major basins within Europe, North and South America, and we are expanding rapidly throughout the Middle East, Asia Pacific and West Africa.
